Under Milk Wood

• The production of Dylan Thomas' Under Milk Wood was superb, and a great deal of credit is due to its producer-adaptor, Paul Almond. I cannot recall off hand any other single CBC production that equalled this effort, although I'm sure it offended the usual number of Yahoos. Doug Rain did a sensitive job as narrator; in fact the casting was altogether excellent. Could anyone ever forget Mrs. Organ Morgan, with her tears and her flounder? Or Polly Garters? It could be hoped that CBC, having shown the courage—and taste—to put on this work will schedule a re-filming. Many people missed it, and for those of us who didn't it would be a new delight to see it again.—B. K., Winnipeg.

• I would like to express my appreciation for the Folio production of Under Milk Wood. It was perhaps one of the most completely satisfying programs I have ever seen on CBC television. Thank you.—H.G.S., Winnipeg.

• Congratulations on your production of Under Milk Wood. This must have been a most difficult play to produce and yet it came over with humour and humanity. The changing atmospheres of the day and the moods of the village were strong despite the lack of sets—or perhaps because of it. Keep on experimenting with the new and the different; TV needs a questing spirit.—Mrs. P.D., Calgary.

• After suffering through Folio last Tuesday evening I can readily understand why the good Canadian actors eventually go to the States—they have to in order to get a good play! It is an insult to expect people to watch this trash! From now on our TV goes off when this stupid program comes on.—Mrs. Margaret Cormack, Winnipeg.

• . . . a great delight. The magnificent wordsmithing of Thomas was very skilfully interpreted by all those concerned with this highly imaginative presentation. I am certain that you are receiving a flood of letters from indignant viewers who, while mature of years are adolescent of mind. For my part . . . nothing Dylan Thomas revealed either shocked or surprised me. Perhaps I should learn the art of perceiving subtlety by studying Danny Thomas? —John S. Peach, Calgary.

P.M. Party

• I happened to turn on P.M. Party last week. Words cannot tell you how disgusted and angry I was to think that adult women should be insulted by such fare. Do you mean that people are actually paid good money to kill time with that dribble? Any woman whose mentality would allow her to enjoy that sort of thing is not capable of running the average home.—Mrs. H.G.S., Winnipeg.

Crime Course?

• We have just finished listening to "Easy Money" on Project '59. I was horrified to think that the CBC would sponsor a series on how to become a criminal. I suppose the idea behind it was that crime does not pay, but as depicted by CBC it does. Your two "guest artists" were both smugly pleased with their past accomplishments, or so I gathered from their tone of voice. We hear a lot about obscene literature and the effect it has on young people, but when all is said and done it is mostly fiction which no sensible person believes and which you can keep out of your home. Not so the obscene crime instruction given on Project '59, and sprung on a public which has always prided itself on the high quality of CBC productions. I hope enough people will object to this type of program and that it will disappear from the CBC.—Mr. and Mrs. H.C., Langbank, Sask.

Radio Talks

• I think it my duty to let you know how much I have enjoyed your series of Tuesday morning University of the Air talks by Prof. Armstrong, dealing with economics, tariffs, and trade unions. I look forward very much to similar talks. Also, I wish to express my very great appreciation of the first of the Tuesday night lectures on our growing knowledge of the Universe—the Reith Lectures by Prof. A. C. B. Lovell.—Wm. Howse, Carragana, Sask.

Eskimo Plays

• Here is one Canadian who is grateful to CBC radio for helping him become aware of the Eskimos and the terrible responsibilities we now face in helping them have a future. In particular, their way of life, philosophy and mannerisms were most clearly presented on one CBC radio dramatic presentation. I am not talking about Len Peterson's CBC Stage presentation of Tomorrow We Hunt, but rather of Herb Hosie's The Day Eggie Took His Name, presented on Halifax Theatre. The production boys at CBC Halifax need not bow their head in obeisance to CBC Toronto, but rather rejoice. For in 30 excellent and lucidly produced radio minutes Halifax Theatre conveyed all that Len Peterson and company failed to in two hours of the over-stuffed CBC Stage. Halifax Theatre accomplished incomparably superior results at no extra cost and with no lavish advance publicity such as Tomorrow We Hunt received in CBC Times.—G. G. Jamieson, Saskatoon.

Project '59

• In the past I have often dreaded Monday. This is no longer the case these days, and the reason is Project '59. I have only praise for the subjects you select, and although we have only been listening to this program for about two months I find you have opened up completely new horizons.—I. C. Henderson, Winnipeg.

The City

• Dr. William Parker's "University Talk," The City, was an excellent discussion, compressing the vast subject into a short period without killing it. May we have more talks by Dr. Parker?—Mrs. A. V. Turner, Regina.

Westerns

• A word about those people who dislike Westerns. Although the plot is generally mediocre and there is lots of shooting and rough stuff, at least the horses are beautiful and the scenery really lovely. The heroine is always covered up, except in Gun-smoke. I'm sick and fed up with watching half-naked females . . . —Mrs. G. T., St. James.

• Can something be done to abolish westerns? They are boring to most adults, and teach children nothing but violence.—B.H., Winnipeg.

OUR COVER—

Joyce Hahn

Gracing our cover this week is Joyce Hahn of CBC-TV's 'Cross-Canada Hit Parade.

Born in Southern Saskatchewan, Joyce got into showbusiness when the depression forced her father to vacate his homestead and launch his talented family on an entertainment venture. At the age of four Joyce made her first appearance before an audience, in a smoke filled gambling hall and tavern in the town of Wolf Point, Montana. Back In Your Own Back Yard, rendered while perched high on the bar, brought a shower of silver dollars at the conclusion of the number.

The pre-war years took the Hahns to small towns in the Northwest, and eventually led them to New York City where they remained until 1942. Montreal was Joyce's next stop, where, during the war years she turned her talents to singing in canteens for Canadian servicemen and appeared in some 150 army camp shows in the Montreal area.

CBC radio entered the picture when radio singer Fred Hill heard her singing with a quintet in a Montreal night club. Impressed, he asked her to sing on his CBC radio show. Later Joyce and brother Bob formed a quartet and did club-date work in Montreal. From this she broke into the radio commercial field when Bob started writing radio jingles which Joyce sang.

In 1955 Bob McGall, CBC-TV's supervisor of variety, recalled hearing Joyce on the Fred Hill show seven years before, and asked her to come to Toronto for a TV audition. She has been with 'Cross-Canada Hit Parade ever since.

Joyce moved a year ago to Toronto, where she plans to settle. During the summer she Why don't you show such and such a film?

The casualty rate was very high the week of February 8 to 15. Three feature films, although scheduled and confirmed for telecast, did not reach the television screens of Winnipeg viewers. They were pretty good films, too.

As I told you in the first of these articles, our feature films are screened in Toronto for physical quality. This is done in the east because most of the film distributors are located in Toronto and, if a film has to be rejected, for poor physical quality, a replacement can be procured more quickly. This last week, we were fortunate in having some fairly good replacement films on standby in Winnipeg. This is not always the case. We realize it must be extremely frustrating for our viewers to get comfortably settled in front of their television sets, prepared to watch a certain film, and find a completely different one appear on the TV screen. As a rule, we have two or three days notice, but sometimes the film will be shipped to us direct from the distributor to meet our schedule, usually arriving a day in advance.

If, when the film is screened and found to be of poor quality physically (i.e., badly scratched, incomplete, brittle, or with an almost unintelligible sound track), we have very little time to warn the audience of the change. We phone the newspapers immediately, usually in time for them to change their copy; we use our station identification time to tell you the title of the new feature; we advise you through the Spotlight bulletin board, and we tell the CBWT switchboard. The point I would like to make is this—we do everything in our power to bring you the titles as scheduled. We are publishing the titles of the March features as they are scheduled and confirmed as of February 16. You might like to keep a record of any changes, just for fun.

Another point I should like to make is the fact that we rarely pull a film from the schedule for other reasons than poor print quality. We try to offend no one with the features we televise, but sometimes in presenting an historical film (and the Second World War is now history) certain events may be pictured in such a way as to distress some of our new Canadians. This is not the intention I assure you, but during the period from 1941 to 1948, a great many war pictures were produced in Hollywood, and some in Great Britain. If we were to avoid all these films, we would limit our already much limited source of films. Also, we would deprive you of some very fine performances.

However, all this is not answering directly your question at the head of this article, so I shall try to do this now.

Rarely does a day pass without at least one phone call from a viewer—why don't you show more films with Clark Gable, or Norma Shearer or Robert Taylor or Mickey Rooney or Greta Garbo?

The simple answer is that these stars were all under contract to Metro Goldwyn Mayer and, at the time of writing, the CBC does not have television rights to these features—717 in all, right from the Hollywood Revue of 1929 (and how many of you remember that one with Joan Crawford, Jack Benny, Doug, Fairbanks, Junior, Frank Fay and a long cast of MGM stars of that day) up to Little Women, released in 1949. The MGM features released after 1949 have not been offered to Canadian television yet.

Another large package of feature films which we would welcome to our schedule is that of the RKO studios. There are 740 features in this package—a great many of them Grade A features.

The Paramount Pictures have not been released in any great quantity, yet there were some fine features produced by this studio.

So, if you count up all these features, which we haven't been able to produce up to this time, you will know why we don't show a lot of the titles you would like to see. These three studios produced the better quality features, although there were some excellent films produced by the Warner Bros., Universal, Twentieth Century Fox, Columbia and some independent producing companies.

Often I will be asked why we don't play a certain film—and we have played it. You can't be expected to stay up every night, or stay in the city all year around. Many of the top features have appeared on the network program, Great Movies. This is a 26-week series, which replaces hockey on Saturday evenings during the summer. In Winnipeg, during June, July, and August, most viewers are outdoors enjoying the long daylight hours, so they miss many of the good features. Perhaps we will be able to re-schedule these during the winter months next season.

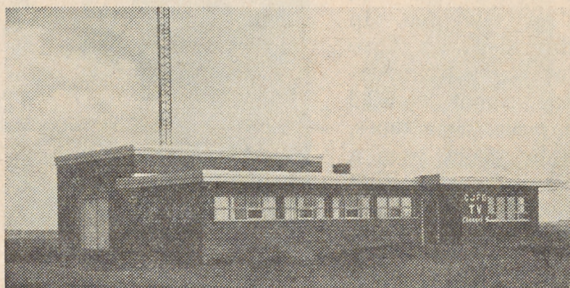

Another question I'm asked frequently is "Why don't we have (Please turn to page 6)

Television in Swift Current

Tenth article in an 11-week series on prairie television stations

CJFB-TV

More than 130,000 residents of Southwest Saskatchewan got television for Christmas, 1957. It was on December 23, 1957, that CJFB-TV went on the air on Channel 5 with a power of 13,300 watts video and 6,650 watts audio. The station is located two miles north of Swift Current on what is now known as "television hill" and with its antenna reaching an elevation of 3,049 feet above sea level, CJFB-TV pounds a strong signal which serves all southwest Saskatchewan. It was the third station to go on the air in Saskatchewan and serves an area which is termed as Saskatchewan's third major market; the farm income alone in this area amounts to almost 25 per cent of the provincial total. Television sets in this area sold at an extremely rapid rate and by the time the station had completed its first ten months of telecasting it was serving over 17,500 television households.

From the first day CJFB-TV commenced telecasting it was bringing its viewers top programs. For the first eight months all of its network programs were by means of film. However, on October 1, 1958, the station joined the Trans-Canada Television Network, its first network program being the first game of the World Series. These games had been eagerly awaited by residents of the area and for the first time sporting events were seen live in this area where sports interest is at an all time high.

CJFB-TV places great emphasis on local programs and the telecasting of best programs possible. Along with carrying most network programs, CJFB-TV produces many local shows which in addition to syndicated and feature films, gives the residents of southwest Saskatchewan a variety of top programs for every age group and every taste. In the relatively short time the station has been on the air it has featured many live telecasts, highlighted by the singing of a 72 voice all-girl choir from Swift Current schools, a special Good Friday telecast of a 60-voice massed choir in a presentation of Handel's Messiah, and numerous interviews and presentations of local and national personalities. Preceding Christmas the station presented daily telecasts of various choirs from Swift Current and surrounding area. Just recently it presented a live telecast from its studios of a 75-piece brass band from Moorehead, Minnesota.

An interesting part of CJFB-TV's programming is its daily half-hour Variety program. This program features live telecasts of a local nature and is reserved specifically for promoting local talent, featuring of interviews with civic leaders and groups, expression by local service clubs, etc. The program is everything the name implies . . . Variety. One day will feature a local graduate nutritionist and a horticultural show. Next day will feature a local vocalist or vocal group. Other days will feature guest artists, touring band, presentation of curling or any sports awards or even a blood donor clinic right in the studio with a station announcer donating blood on the air.

Because the station has taken a very keen interest in promoting shows and items of a local nature it has achieved a reputation where . . . "if anything happens in Southwest Saskatchewan or if you want to know of anything that is coming to Southwest Saskatchewan . . . you will see it all on CJFB-TV."

The programming department is headed by Mrs. Julie Forst who is the station's Program Director and Production Manager. She has had years of broadcasting experience starting in radio back in 1947. Because of her keen (Please turn to page 6) more British features?" The answer to that is "We have telecast, and are still playing British features." We have televised over 100 J. Arthur Rank films and now have under contract over 50 British features, although the newer Rank features have not yet been released.

Many of the films which our viewers would like to see will never appear on television. In some cases, the negatives have been lost or are so badly deteriorated that they cannot be used for printing purposes. Sometimes, a negative can be struck from a print and prints made from that duplicate negative. A great deal of quality is lost in this process, however, particularly in the sound track. So the owners of the film prefer not to release it at all.

We are always interested in having suggestions from our viewers, but we would ask that you write these suggestions rather than phone them to us. If you would like to see certain films, let us have the title and the stars (if you remember them) and, if possible, the producing company. I may not answer your letter in person, but you may rest assured we will do all we can to bring you the features you would like to see. This will take time, but we sincerely hope your patience will be rewarded.

Meanwhile, remember that of the thousands of pictures made, only a very few were exceptional, and only a slightly larger number were excellent. We cannot skim the cream from the top. To quote Jane Ace, of early radio fame—"You have to take the bitter with the better."

Realism is Vital

Two views of the Good are dividing the whole world. We are each insensitive to what is wise and human in the other. The reconciliation won't be easy. It may even be impossible. But the first step is to see the problem. And to see it as clearly as we can, with as much realism and charity as individuals on both sides can manage to summon up.—Sir Charles Snow, British author, on BBC.

TV IN SWIFT CURRENT

interest in her viewers she tries for the highest standards of programming and production tailored to fit the needs and tastes of the residents of Swift Current and southwest Saskatchewan.

CJFB-TV news and sports coverage has been rated as the best in the area, with the news department covering fires, accidents and other happenings in the area within minutes of the actual time. CJFB-TV weatherscopes have become respected by farmers, oil men and residents of the southwest, while the station's sports department has opened a new facet of sports coverage to the residents of the great southwest. A well-watched program is The Huddle seen every Tuesday at 7:00 p.m. On this program the station's sports director, Don Hoskins along with various local panelists discuss and debate problems relating to local and national sports.

CJFB-TV is headed by energetic William D. Forst, President and General Manager of the station, who has had extensive experience in the broadcast field.

Sales Manager of the station is Walter S. Buffam who has also had years of business and financial experience across Canada.

More TV Stations

The CBC is making application to the new Board of Broadcast Governors for licences to establish five new television stations. Public hearings of the Board will be held in Ottawa March 16, 17, and 18. The CBC applications are for television stations at Corner Brook, Nfld., Kenora, Ont., and Trail, B.C. (English-language); and for French-language stations at Moncton, N.B., and Winnipeg (St. Boniface), Man. Granting of the Winnipeg licence would establish the first CBC French-language TV station in Western Canada, and the first dual-language CBC-TV operation in any one city other than Montreal and Ottawa.

Lonely Pursuit

Mathematics, however the pill may be sugared, is a lonely activity. You have to do it on your own in the end, and if too high a premium is laid on happy get-togetherness you will not persuade many budding mathematicians to flower.—Prof. J. A. Lawwerys of London University on BBC.

kinds of "flowered" hats but one of the simplest and most effective is the kind that is made simply by covering a form with a pretty printed material. Today, Gay Hoyt shows viewers exactly how it is done. SIMPLE SEWING — Mary Holliday presents her first lesson in the art of making a dress. She will be with viewers every day this week, with tips for the beginner. PASSPORT TO RUSSIA — I. B. Lucas, whose writings on horticulture are widely read in Canada and the United States, is particularly interested in growing dwarf fruit trees and in encouraging others to do likewise. It was mainly that interest that made him take a trip to Russia, where agriculturists have been experimenting with small trees as well. Today, he talks about what he saw on his recent trip and shows viewers some of the pictures he took.

P.M. Party

Automobile adwoman Ann Young shows women viewers how to drive, and change a tire without soiling their clothes. Regular performers: Gordie Tapp, Donna Miller, Rex Loring, Rudy Toth and Daniel the Spaniel. From Toronto.

Howdy Doody

Doodyville faces famine because a mysterious floating island blocks the harbour entrance. From Toronto.

Meet Your N.H.L. Stars

Fifteenth in a series of articles on N.H.L. stars to be seen in action on Saturday night telecasts over the CBC-TV network.

15. Dickie Moore

Dickie Moore is one of the few great junior players who managed to live up to his early potential in the N.H.L.—and it took five years.

After playing brilliant hockey for the Montreal Royal Juniors and Seniors and the Canadian Juniors, Moore moved up to the parent N.H.L. club toward the end of the '51-'52 season. He netted 18 goals and assisted on 15 others in just 33 games, marking himself as a young man to watch. And so well watched was he and so robustly checked that injuries kept him out of all but 31 games in the next two years.

He began to come back in the 1955-56 season when coach Blake placed him on a line with the Richard brothers. He scored only 11 goals but set up another 39 for Maurice and Henri. The following year he had 29 goals amongst 58 points and last year he led the League in scoring with 36 goals and in points with 84. A real clutch performer, Moore has scored more winning goals than any other player in each of the last two years.

His performance last year warranted him an All-Star selection as first team left-wing; a spot for many years reserved for Ted Lindsay. Having worked hard to attain stardom, Moore intends to keep his place in the sun. Although he started rather slowly this year, a terrific late season splurge has brought him into first place both in scoring and point getting at this writing.

Richard Winston Moore was born in Montreal, January 6, 1931, the youngest of a family of eight boys and one girl. Like most hockey-minded kids, he made his way up through the various leagues from playground through Pee-Wees and Bantams until he was signed by Montreal scout Frank Currie.

A left winger throughout his career Moore has proved adaptable and has at times looked even better at right wing. Although he has no preference, he'd rather lay alongside the Richards than any other linemates.

Because of his many injuries, Moore was once labelled as one of the fragile players who gets injured every time he's hit hard. At the time, Bill Head, the Canadiens' physiotherapist debunked the theory, claiming that Moore was as strong and durable as any player on the team, but had a lot of early bad luck. The last four seasons bear out Head's ideas because Moore hasn't missed a single game. He played the latter part of the '58 season with a broken wrist in a heavy plaster cast and even managed 11 points in ten playoff games.

Though he still backs away from nobody, Moore is no longer the trouble-maker he was when he entered the League with a reputation as a hard-rock junior. He usually spends between 50 and 60 minutes per season in the penalty box.

Language Pitfalls

JEAN HINDS, CBC Morning Commentator for Saskatchewan, on CBK

Good morning! This is Jean Hinds. I got an anonymous letter the other day from Saskatoon. I'm sorry the writer didn't sign her name, or possibly his name, because I'd have enjoyed acknowledging it.

The very words "anonymous letter" have come to have an unpleasant suggestion, as if the anonymous letters were always disagreeable to downright libelous. My anonymous letter wasn't that at all. I was pleased to get it, a little amused, and I also felt, Oh, shame on me! I've done it again. My correspondent, in the most gracious terms pointed out an error

I had made. I had used a nominative pronoun when it should have been objective. I'll read the first paragraph of the letter—"A very good talk this morning, but, oh, Jean—He let my sister and I have the cottage." Yes, I said on the air, "He let my sister and I have the cottage." Of course it should have been "he let my sister and me have the cottage." A glaring error indeed. You'd never say, "He let I have the cottage." But the error is my weak point in grammar. I was wondering why I was so susceptible to that error. When we were small children, before we went to school, we commonly said, "Me and Alice are playing" or "Me and Susie are going to build a play house." Where we picked that up, I don't know. Small children have a gift for picking up language that isn't approved in the best society.

I never moved in the best society, but still my elders knew that "me and Alice are playing" was wrong. They'd tell me, earnestly "Never, never say. 'Me and Alice,' don't say 'Me and Susie.' It's 'Alice and I,' or 'Susie and I.'" They went that far in their corrections but didn't get into the more complex matter of nominative and objective case. I doubt that they knew much about "case," and it would have been over my head.

The elders of our family were people who hadn't had much formal schooling, but they liked to do things right. No doubt they began life saying "Me and John were milking the cows." And they adopted the improved form with all the enthusiasm of people who haven't gone to school long, but who are ambitious to take a place in refined and cultured society.

At any rate, it was firmly impressed in my small brain, "Alice and I," "Susie and I," "John and I."

Then I went to school and about grade five we began studying formal grammar. We memorized many rules from a book. I think that, in many ways, modern educational methods have gone rather too far. But I don't believe the way they taught in my school days was ideal either. We memorized a lot of grammar rules, then we went out and talked as if we'd adopted a new language, apart from the speech of the grammar period. We didn't learn to apply the rules to living. They were what you con ned painfully to pass the examination.

I memorized the rule, "A pronoun, governed by a preposition, must take the objective case." And always I said "He gave it to me," "He spoke to them." But when Alice and Susie and John got into it, they complicated matters. Invariably I said, "He gave it to Alice and I," "He spoke to John and I."

I noticed my nephews and nieces never made that same mistake. One day, when he was about seven years old, the younger nephew came in and said "Chris says he can beat up Derrick and me." I ignored the warlike import of the message and asked, "Why don't you say, 'Chris says he can beat up Derrick and I'?" My nephew looked at me scornfully, "Well, you wouldn't say 'Chris says he can beat up I,' would you?" Someone had apparently taught him the reason of the rule, before he'd learned the rule itself.

Alas, I had "Alice and I," "My sister and I," any second person and I, so thoroughly drummed into me in the impressionable years that even today, it slips out, in the wrong places, occasionally. I'll bet if I went to a meeting of language specialists, all of whom spoke vividly, knowledgeably, and correctly, I'd find myself saying on one occasion or other: "Mr. and Mrs. Smith invited Helen and I to tea."

I've been discussing a point of grammar about which there is no question. Even the most enthusiastic reformers and simplifiers of language don't question it—if it's an object it's me, not I. My correspondent in Saskatoon is perfectly right. I haven't a leg to stand on.

Yes, I'll say I haven't a leg to stand on, not necessarily "I haven't a leg on which to stand." For not all grammatical points are as clear cut as the one she makes. For instance, at school we learned that a preposition such as on, in, or with shouldn't come at the end of a sentence. In grammar period we said, "He needs a table on which to put it." Outside we said, "He needs a table to put it on." The preposition at the end of a sentence has crashed into cultured circles. In this connection, they tell a story about Sir Winston Churchill. He had prepared a speech and handed it on to someone of the clerical staff, to check. Not that Sir Winston's, or Mr. Churchill's as he was then, needed checking. The check was simply for fact, figures. The speech came into the hands of a young lad who had, apparently, learned at school, that a preposition does not come at the end of the sentence. One of Mr. Churchill's did. The clerk duly corrected it and worked in a "with which" or "on which" or "by which," whatever it was, and returned the speech. Mr. Churchill looked at it and saw the correction. He wrote in the margin: "This is pedantry, up with which I will not put."

The language keeps on changing. What's accepted today was bad writing or speaking yesterday. Sometimes it's hard for some of us, much lesser lights than Winston Churchill, to know where to draw the line.

But I can't argue with my Saskatoon correspondent. And I enjoyed the letter that pointed out a glaring error, one which dogs my footsteps. I must be more careful.

Almond to U.K.

CBC drama producer Paul Almond (who adapted and produced Dylan Thomas' Under Milk Wood recently) has left for England to handle a production for BBC Television. This time it is one of his own plays—a repeat performance of The Hill, which Almond wrote and produced on CBC-TV as a special Good Friday presentation in 1956, and which won an award from the Institute for Education by Radio and Television at Columbus, Ohio. An unusual religious play, The Hill tells the story of the crucifixion through realistic present-day characters and totally unrealistic sets, with mood suggested chiefly by the use of light and shadow playing on the actors' faces.

"YOU are very nice to talk to . . . I am enjoying this very much."

These compliments must be among Elaine Grand's most treasured memories from her distinguished career as a television interviewer. For they came from a person of whom Twentieth Century Authors says "personal contact rather overwhelming . . . Arnold Bennett was not the only one to gasp that she dazzled him."

Elaine was visiting Dame Edith Sitwell for Close-Up, at the ancient family home where Sitwells have lived since 1590, in a district in the south of England where Sitwells have roamed at least since the year 1120. Dame Edith (or Dr.

Sitwell as she is often called) is 72. She is, to quote from a recent New York Times article, "the nearest thing to a major poet the British Isles have produced since Hardy, Lawrence and Yeats." But as well as being an eminent poet she is an eccentric personality—some would say the most eccentric to appear on the English scene for a very long time. "Because it suits her," because she is "the medieval type," she adopts for her everyday attire dresses in the fashion of the Middle Ages, brocaded silks and the like, making her curiously a part of the atmosphere of her ancestral residence.

Elaine Grand stepped into that atmosphere, a short time ago, and

Wednesday on "Close-Up"

Elaine Grand Dame Edith

managed not to be dazzled. In fact, she carried off a filmed interview which, in the words of producer Ross McLean, will rank with the best she has done, including her famous tete-a-tete with Bertrand Russell.

To judge from a typed transcript of the interview, Elaine struck up a woman-to-woman relationship with Dame Edith that somehow allowed her without impertinence to ask some very personal questions.

Was there ever any jealousy between Edith and her brothers, Osbert and Sacheverell? What happens when she sits down and says, "Well, I must knock out my four lines today?" How does she feel when she is criticized — "I mean, you have been very severely criticized in the past?" How did she like Hollywood? When she is writing, is she conscious of communicating with other people, or is it her own self she is writing for? Is her unconventional attire designed intentionally to go with her public personality? Why does

ELAINE GRAND with DA

Interviews

Ch Sitwell

she like jazz? Is it painful or pleasant for her to be interviewed? —

Now for a few answers (without the questions): "One has to have a terrific technique and I used to practise for hours a day as pianists practise . . . I would sometimes take a barrel-organ tune, or something like that, and fit it to words, and the more complicated the better pleased I was, because that was how I got my technique . . . Rhythm might be described as for the world of sound what light is in the world of sight. It shapes and gives new meaning." And yet: "One must never discipline oneself to write poetry. That is what produces most of the bosh that is written nowadays."

Still without any risk of spoiling the show, here are a few excerpts from the dialogue, revealing some of Dame Edith's views on poetry and religion:

How to read poetry?

Q.—How should one read poetry? I don't mean a poet.—I mean me.

DAME EDITH SITWELL.

How should I read it? How do you get your mind ready to read it properly?

A.—Well, that I don't think I can say.

Q.—There is no special mood that one should be in?

A.—No, but one thing I can say, by reading poetry, and that is that if one reads a modern poem and it bores one after having read the great poetry of the past, it means that that poet is just no good. You can always use that judgment.

The poet's secret?

Q.—People often complain about obscurity in poems, including your poems. They want things to be factual, to tell the story, to be easily understood. A child, on the other hand, does not — seems to have a wider acceptance of things, or accepts the fact that a sky could be green?

A.—Oh, yes, but that is perfectly true. You see, what I think—it was Sir Hammond Reed called "the innocent eye."

Q.—And what happens to our innocent eye when we grow up?

A.—Well, it is our fault if we don't retain it. You see, Dylan Thomas retained his to the end of his life.

Q.—Is that the real thing, the one thing that all poets have in common? "The innocent eye" sees afresh?

A.—All good poets.

Poetry and magic?

Q.—We hold poets in awe, and almost frightened reverence, because what they do is a mystery to (Please turn to page 18) people, and we think they are special kinds of human beings—breathe differently, eat differently, think differently.

A.—Well, from the beginning of time poetry and magic were supposed to be one, were they not?

Q.—Perhaps they still are?

A.—Oh, yes, they are. I mean poetry without magic is no good.

Q.—You of course believe that all poetry should be and is a religious thing?

A.—Oh, definitely, praise of God.

Q.—All good poetry . . .

A.—All good poetry, even when it isn't consciously doing so, it is, because when one is praising the beauty of the world one is praising God . . . and if one is reproaching the world for not being what it should be, that again is religious.

Q.—So anything good, then, by your terms, is religious?

A.—Anything that helps people is religious, and anything that throws a new light on the world is religious.

U.S. TV Engineers And Educators Study CBC Methods

Export of the first of several CBC-TV dramas to the United States last fall brought many appreciative letters from American viewers who were seeing Canadian television drama "live" for the first time — and it has also brought visits to CBC Toronto by two teams of American television engineers. While viewers in general were watching the unfolding drama, the engineers were watching definition, tones of grey, and other technical aspects of picture quality, and it was something they hadn't seen before. The answer they found in Toronto — new technical equipment from Marconi, including a remarkable four-and-a-half inch image-orthicon tube (the standard size has been three-inch). The use of this tube has permitted the CBC producers and technicians more freedom in lighting and camera work in studios.

Other visitors from the United States in recent weeks have included a group concerned with broadcast programs for children. Among those attending a CBC conference on the subject were Hartford Gunn, of station WGBH in Boston (who said "nowhere else is there a pool of talent such as you have here, nor is there any other group with the seriousness of purpose and the desire to study this field rather than simply to present good programming"); Ralph Garry, project director for the Foundation for Character Education attached to the University of Boston; Jack Miller, creator of the Captain Kangaroo series; Dr. Edward Stasheff of the University of Michigan, author of several books on writing and production for radio and television; and Leonard Weisgard, a well-known author and illustrator of books for children.

intends making personal appearances in Fort William, Winnipeg and other centres.

She will be one of the special guests on the first program in the local CBC series The Show That Jack Built Feb. 27 on CBWT. Other guests on the same program will be the Mariners (vocal quartet), and Les Paul and Mary Ford (guitarists and vocalists). Jack Shapira leads the band.

Science and Business

Three talks by SIR ROBERT WATSON-WATT

"Compare the human brain with one of the world's most complex computing machines—in effect there is a similarity, but it ends there. I like to refer to the brain of man as a beautiful electronic computer with some ten billion circuits. Our biggest machine is obviously incomparable."

These are some of the thoughts of Sir Robert Watson-Watt, scientist, author and lecturer.

Sir Robert, best known, perhaps, as the inventor of radar, will chair a series of radio discussions with fellow scientists concerning the role of science in modern society. The programs, which will include such topics as science and business, science and computing machines, science and the human machine and science and society, will be heard on the Trans-Canada radio network March 6th, 13th, 20th and 27th (9:30 p.m. on CBW; 10:30 p.m. on CBK and CBX). Among the issues discussed will be whether science shapes or is shaped by social pressure.

"The purpose of the programs," says Sir Robert, "is to shed more light on new extensions of scientific thought reflecting the growing place of the scientist outside his own sphere, particularly in the field of business and management. Many businessmen are beginning to realize that science can help them assess the situations they face in policy-making, determine the odds a businessman must play for success, and establish the risks involved. In this belief they are turning more and more to the scientist in the field of 'operational research' for their answers.

"Perhaps the first truly scientific application of the term 'operational research' came in the pre-war years (Please turn to page 29)

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL, Dean, Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto

This week we have two Canadian compositions which should be among the more interesting events. One of them, on CBC Wednesday Night, is, we believe, a first radio performance. This is Images, a suite for strong orchestra by Harry Freedman. This work was commissioned for the McGill Chamber Society last season by the Lepitsky Foundation and this Society is to give the broadcast. The suite is in three movements, each one named after a Canadian painting: the first, Blue Mountain by Lawren Harris; the second, Structure at Dusk by Kazuo Nakamura, and the third Landscape by Jean-Paul Riopelle. The other large Canadian work this week is one that was commissioned by the CBC last year and given its first performance in October. This is Horoscope by Roger Matton, a 28-year-old Quebec composer, who has quite a few successful compositions to his credit. Horoscope was inspired by an Acadian legend which the composer came across in the Archives of Laval University. It tells of a child at whose birth it is predicted that he will be hanged at the age of 21. When he grows up he flees his family and native land to escape his fate, acquires a mysterious travelling companion (actually his guardian angel) and finally meets a beautiful princess with whom he falls in love. He marries the princess on the evening of his majority and on the same evening his destiny is realized, but in a symbolic fashion. The hanging takes place in a dream. The work will be performed by the CBC Symphony on Sunday evening.

CBW-5:45 p.m. CBK-4:45 p.m. CBX-4:45 p.m.

WHEN IN MEXICO don't expect to find Mexicans dressed like the two chaps with the big hats. "That's a preconceived idea tourists seem to have," says Lilia G. Tuero, above, and she should know. She's a Mexican and an official tourist representative in Toronto. John Lucarotti (left) and John Lerch know a lot about Mexico too, now. They've just returned after compiling a sound-picture of the country. Called "Portrait of a Mexican Town," it will shatter many other myths about Mexico. The program will be heard on "Project '59" Monday, March 2 and Sunday, March 8 (check CBC Times radio listings for program times).

Coming Up . . .

On CBC Radio, look for two brand new series under the general title Festival in Sound, scheduled to begin in April on the Trans-Canada network. CBC program planners have asked producers across the country to work out methods for achieving the best possible sound pick-up for each piece of music in quarter- and half-hour programs, and then to record for later broadcast. Under normal, "live" operations, the arrangement of microphones positioning of an instrumental group or of singers, may remain the same for the whole period of the program even though the musical sound might be improved in quality if it were possible to arrange a new set-up for each number. For the new series, each number will have been specially recorded in the best manner the producer, operator and performer can devise. Festival in Sound will be made up of twelve quarter-hour evening programs beginning April 3rd and six half-hour evening periods beginning April 14th.

LITTLE SYMPHONIES

Conducted by Roland Leduc with Swiss 'cellist Henri Honegger.

Sonata de Camera _____ Martinu

Mr. Honegger, first 'cellist with the Orchestra de la Suisse-Romande, has been a soloist with many European orchestras. He gave the first performances of Martinu's "Sonata da Camera" for 'cello and orchestra as soloist at the Festivals of Edinburgh, Venice, Frankfurt and Paris. "Sonata da Camera" was dedicated to the 'cellist by the Czech composer Bohuslav Martinu. Honnegger was born in Geneva where he began his musical training. He continued his training in Leipzig with Julius Klengel, then moved to Paris where he studied at l'Ecole Normale with Pablo Casals and Dirain Alexanian. In 1950 Henri Honegger visited New York where he gave two concerts commemorating the 200th anniversary of the death of

J. S. Bach. They were devoted to Bach's six unaccompanied 'cello suites.

SCHOOL BROADCASTS

Manitoba—"Adventures in Speech," a new and exciting challenge to make primary classes aware of the beauty of their language and to help them to speak it clearly and beautifully. The program stresses three important factors: (a) good posture (b) concentrated listening (c) careful, thoughtful repetition. This week's lesson is entitled "Bumpety, Bumpety, Bump!" Today's program also includes "Le quart d'heure francais," which will consist of a study of the selection "Cosette" from the New French Reader.

CBW-3:00 p.m.

Saskatchewan—"Adventures in Speech," (same as Manitoba, note above), and Ici-le francais (eleventh broadcast), Grade 9.

Aims of French broadcasts:

1. To give the beginning French student an opportunity to hear French spoken correctly and fluently, with the proper intonation—the melodic rise and fall of the voice.

2. To explain the formation of basic French sounds and to provide an opportunity to practice them.

3. By the use of conversation, plays, and songs to make French more interesting and vital to the beginner.

4. To arouse the student's desire to speak French with a correct accent and to acquire a practical vocabulary of idioms and every-day expressions. CBK-2:00 p.m.

Alberta—Program news for parents, and Listen and Sing (Grades 1 to 3). CBX-2:00 p.m.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Today Betty Shapiro of Montreal concludes her stimulating series on "Careers After Forty" with an interview with Marion Royce, Director of the Women's Bureau of the Canadian Department of Labour who sums up the problems and opportunities encountered by the older woman seeking to resume a career. Betty Shapiro interviewed Miss Royce in her office in Ottawa.

Trans-Canada Matinee also features the fourth talk in the series "The Changing World of Childhood" by Betty Henderson of Regina. The "Tale of Peter Rabbit" and the wonderful characters of Squirrel Nutkin, Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle, Little Pig Robinson, Tom Kitten and the rest are encountered in today's talk. Betty Henderson describes their creator, Beatrix Potter, and the world in which she lived and wrote.

Another feature of Trans-Canada Matinee is Vinia Hoogstraten's description of a motor trip through the mountains. Mrs. Hoogstraten is a Winnipeg housewife and freelance broadcaster.

Czech-born bass-baritone Jan Rubes of Toronto is featured in the musical portion on today's show. The readings on "Matinee" are from a book by Laura Fermi entitled "Atoms in the Family." The News commentator will be Robert Duffy.

"Theatre in the Rough"

A new series of talks on early "cultural exchanges," Sunday nights on CBK and CBX, Monday nights on CBW

Dr. Victor Leathers

In these days of world tension, "cultural exchanges" often play a useful role in creating better international feeling and are regarded as "good propaganda" by countries east and west. The host country is always at pains to offer the visiting artists a cordial reception.

Things were very different in the past, and in the case of Britain and France during the 18th and 19th centuries so-called "cultural exchanges" could be exceedingly dangerous undertakings, both financially (for the sponsor) and physically (for the artists).

This is one of the points made clear in a series of four talks under the general title Theatre in the Rough, to be heard Sunday nights at 11:15 p.m. on CBK and CBX and Monday nights at 7:00 p.m. on CBW.

The speaker is Victor Leathers, professor of French at United College in Winnipeg. Besides illustrating (Please turn to page 31)

THE REITH LECTURES

"Astronomy and the State"—fourth of six lectures by Prof. A. C. B. Lovell, professor of radio astronomy at the University of Manchester and director of the Jodrell Bank Experimental Station, under the general title "The Individual and the Universe." Dr. Lovell summarizes tonight's talk as follows:

Since the seventeenth century the growth of astronomical knowledge has depended largely on the improvement of telescopes and the development of new techniques of investigation. Until comparatively recently most of the money for new instruments has been provided from private sources. For example, even the famous 200-inch telescope on Mount Palomar in the United States was financed by the Rockefeller Foundation. The latest techniques of astronomical research make use of radio telescopes, space rockets, and artificial satellites. These are so costly that only national Exchequers can afford them. Governments may be prepared to find the vast sums involved because these instruments can have uses other than those of pure scientific research. But the new, close relationship between astronomy and the State creates its own difficulties and problems.

delssohn's loveliest overtures, Fair Melusine, and a work for piano and orchestra by Schumann—Introduction and Allegro. Schumann wrote several works for piano and orchestra, but we so seldom hear any of them other than the well-known concerto. This is a great pity because there is much lovely music in the work to be heard from Halifax.

On Friday afternoon the Ottawa Orchestra is going to play the 2nd Symphony of Saint-Saens. This is a work which, if one heard it casually, not knowing the identity of the composer, one would be hard put to place, and a guess of anything from Haydn to Poulenc might well be justified. It is full of high spirits and nimble orchestration, very characteristic of the composer. If you like quizzing your friends and trying to catch them out with different compositions, try them on this one.

On Thursday evening, Vancouver is giving us the 6th Symphony of Schubert, once more a work full of high spirits and good humor, but which, if not prudently cut, goes on just half-a-minute too long. I know that Schumann wrote of the "heavenly length" of Schubert, but a surfeit, even of heaven, is too much of a good thing for most of us.

Maureen Forrester's recital on CBC Wednesday Night is one of the most interesting programs I have seen for some time. It contains many songs ranging from "Old English" (Dowland) to modern Canadian (Coulthard).

The Concerto concert on Wednesday afternoon has an original program idea. Instead of the standard one-or-two soloist concerto, we are going to hear the Symphony Concertante for Violin, Viola, 2 Horns and Strings by Stamitz, that prolific 18th-century composer who seems to have tried his hand at every combination of instruments known to music. This should be a most interesting work to hear because I am sure that very few of us have ever had a chance of getting to know it before.

The Little Symphonies program on Monday morning is being given with that magnificent 'cellist Henri Honegger as soloist. He is going to play the Sonata da Camera by the Czech composer Martinu. This work was dedicated to Honegger by the composer. Honegger is famous for his recitals of Bach's unaccompanied 'cello sonatas, which he has given all over the world with the greatest success.

Finally, I notice that from the Metropolitan on Saturday afternoon (March 7) we can hear Die Meistersinger, probably the most beautiful opera ever written, with a Scandinavian soprano who has recently made an enormous sensation in Europe, but who I don't think is very well known here as yet. Her name is Aase Nordmo-Loevberg and she is compared by many of the leading critics to Lotte Lehmann, which comparison you will realize takes a lot of living up to, or shall we say, singing up to?

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Henry VIII, Solomon and Casanova—the third in a series of six talks about the events and activities on the farm by Jean Tweed of Toronto. The most difficult and uncertain-tempered animal on the farm is the boar, according to Mrs. Tweed. Three of them, Henry VIII, Solomon and Casanova, have at various times inhabited the Tweed farm piggery and Mrs. Tweed discusses the quirks in their personalities in today's talk.

The contentious question of religious education in the public schools has captured the attention of three Toronto debaters who give their views in today's Matinee "In My Opinion" broadcast. Allan Anderson, Toronto freelance broadcaster, is chairman of the panel.

Today's program also includes an interview with a man who supervised the make-up for the politicians who appeared on the first nationally-televised nominating conventions in the United States in 1948. He is Hal King, chief make-up director for Max Factor of Hollywood. He is interviewed by the CBC's morning commentator for Toronto, Edna May. Mr. King also talks about the make-up techniques employed by the actors and actresses of the Kabuki Theatre in Japan and about his work with plastic surgeons during the war. In the course of the interview, he also proffers some advice about the value of make-up to a woman.

Czech-born bass-baritone Jan Rubes of Toronto is featured in the musical portion on today's show. The readings on "Matinee" are from a book by Laura Fermi entitled "Atoms in the Family," the news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

McGILL CHAMBER MUSIC ENSEMBLE

Conducted by Alexander Brott. From Montreal.

Images _____ Harry Freedman

This will be the first radio performance of the work by Toronto composer Harry Freedman which received its premiere a year ago when it was played by this same Montreal group of musicians in Redpath Hall, under the direction of Mr. Brott. The ensemble includes some of Montreal's foremost professional string players. Freedman's composition was commissioned by the Samuel Lepitsky Foundation. The three movements of the work were inspired by three Canadian paintings by Lawren Harris, Kazuo Nakamura and Jean-Paul Riopelle. The opening is associated with Harris' "Blue Mountain," the second movement with Nakamura's "Structure at Dusk," and the third with Riopelle's "Landscape." The Toronto composer studied music in Winnipeg, at the Royal Conservatory in Toronto, and in the United States with Copland and Messiaen. His "Fantasia and Dance for Violin and Orchestra" received its broadcast premiere about a year ago with the CBC Symphony Orchestra.

The Canadian Senate - Superfluous?

Not so, say the Senators. Here, producer Gordon Cullingham describes this week's documentary look at the "Red Chamber"

"I have today signed my warrant of political death. How colourless the Senate—the entering gate to coming extinction!" Those cheeless words appear in the diary of Sir George Foster, a Conservative Cabinet minister of the turn of the century, where he recorded his thoughts on entering the Senate. It is doubtful if there is a Senator today who would openly agree with this uncomplimentary view of the Senate of Canada. Certainly none would vote for its abolition.

This week on CBC Wednesday Night from eight to nine o'clock listeners will get a chance to discover what kind of a place the Senate really is and what kind of human beings the inhabitants of the "Red Chamber" really are. All Senators do not maintain that their institution is a flawless one, and most of those to be heard on the program have specific proposals for reform of this much-abused body, which Bruce Hutchison has called "the refuge and reward of old party servants."

In theory, at least, the Senate has almost equal legislative powers with the other chamber of parliament, the House of Commons. Why, then, is it so often considered ineffectual, and unimportant? Is a second chamber in a democracy really a superfluous anachronism, like the human appendix? Not so, say the Senators, who see their role as a vital one in our country. A certain amount of this vitality is expended on divorce hearings, but there is plenty left for the more orthodox functions of a second chamber as a place of "sober second thought," where the unhasty examination of legislation can take place in a fairly non-partisan atmosphere. In the words of the late Sir James Cartwright, "the value of the senate is not only in what it does, but in what it prevents others from doing."

The Senate has sometimes been called Canada's most exclusive club. Its members are appointed for life and do not have to contest elections, they draw payment of ten thousand dollars a year, carry the title "Honourable," and have all the privileges of Members of Parliament. Right now, with a Progressive Conservative government in power, Liberals outnumber government supporters 74 to 18. At previous times in our history when this situation has existed the

Man., Sask. and Alta.—"Let's Sing Together," a program designed to bring musical treasures to students and to implant in them a really lasting love of good music. This week—"Tis Beautiful in Vossevangen." The "teaching song" is the Danish folksong, "Vossevangen." This dance-song from Denmark has a particularly captivating tune and words which depict quite vividly a picturesque mountain village. The charms of life here include flowers and trees, crystal streams, resident fairies and gay, fun-loving young folk. Though very happy, this song moves at a moderate pace, with a long, smooth step followed by a dainty skip. The music contains many widely-spaced intervals not commonly found in familiar British folk tunes and the words with their varied pictures suggest many musical colours.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Items on today's "Matinee" include:

"Listmanship"—people who write down the things they have to do will sympathize with Shirley Suttles today in her descriptions of the rigours of making a list and crossing off its items. Who has not wanted to cheat occasionally by padding the list so that more items can be crossed off? Mrs. Suttles is a Vancouver housewife and freelance broadcaster.

"The Normal Child"—the first in a series of six interviews about the normal child in all facets of his development. The normal pattern of infant behaviour is the first subject of conversation between Louise Yolles and Dr. John Rich. Mrs. Yolles, a Torontonian, has three "normal" children. Dr. Rich is a well-known child psychiatrist and director of the Thistle-ton (Ontario) Hospital.

"The Father of Modern Cooking"—the availability of large quantities of well-cooked food in modern restaurants, industrial cafeterias, and in institutions, is taken for granted by people today. But in the early 19th century, when Alexis Soyer moved to England from France, cooking on such a large scale was non-existent. Mr. Soyer was a cook and an artist, but he recognized the need to develop techniques which would provide large numbers of people with nourishing, palatable food. His theories were put to the test during the Crimean War and he earned the following lasting tribute from his famous contemporary, Florence Nightingale: "His death is a great disaster. Others have studied cooking for the purpose of gourmandizing (that is, of greed), and others for show, but none but he for the purpose of cooking large quantities of food in the most nutritious manner for large numbers of men. He has no successor."

Cecil Woodham Smith, author of "Florence Nightingale" and "The Reason Why" talks about Alexis Soyer. The talk has been re-recorded for the CBC by the BBC.

within the hierarchy of the Royal Air Force. In this instance a team of scientists, technicians and statisticians in my department, probed the internal workings of the RAF. A prime example of the consequences of this research was the aircraft maintenance changes that came about following our study. New methods of maintenance were worked out resulting in a valuable time-saver in engine repair."

"The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbour is an example of the lack of operational research. Radar was in use at that time and a subordinate had a god radar picture of the situation some fifty minutes before the attack. Operational research would have uncovered this deficiency in good communication and the radar operator's warning probably would not have been stymied before reaching the top brass. At Hickman Field (U.S. Army air base) for instance, the aircraft were kept wing-tip to wing-tip, supposedly to aid security patrols in averting sabotage. No thought was given to the dispersal of these planes in the event of an air attack. A method could have been outlined through the use of operational research to arrange for quick scattering of the aircraft."

In January, 1942, Sir Robert visited the United States. It was a three week sojourn destined to stretch into four months. His experience in Britain's defensive operations (RAF) prompted him to suggest the United States inaugurate a similar system in the U.S. armed forces. By April, 1942 the nucleus of such an organization was formed in the army and navy.

It was a natural flow of events that led the scientist into the business and management fields. The objective here was to apply scientific thought and reasoning to the problems faced by management in making decisions concerning administration, economical production, shipment and storage facilities.

On the subject of computers, Sir Robert stresses the advancement

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Today Kathleen Teltsch, United Nations correspondent for the New York Times, brings her weekly report on what's new "At the U.N."

Today's program also includes an interview with Dr. H. T. Himmelweit. Contrary to many peoples' theories, television-viewing does not have harmful effects on children. This was the conclusion arrived at by a team of research workers commissioned by the Nuffield Foundation in England to investigate television and its effects on children. Director of the team was Dr. H. T. Himmelweit, reader in social psychology at the University of London, and in today's "Matinee" interview she discusses the researchers' findings with Barbara Green, a Canadian freelance broadcaster and former social worker who now lives in England.

Another feature on today's program will be reviews and comments about current books that Elizabeth Mascall has been reading. Mrs. Mascall is "Matinee's" book-reviewer and a Toronto actress.

Czech-born bass-baritone Jan Rubes of Toronto is featured in the musical portion of today's show. The readings are from "Atoms in the Family," by Laura Fermi. The news commentator will be Robert Duffy.

being made in the field of 'thinking machines.' "We intend to define the parallel between the electronic computer and the possible use of advanced machines in business. At a touch of a button, lawyers for example, may be able to study a case in detail through the use of a 'thinking machine.' The built-in knowledge stored by the computer could forseebly eliminate much of the time consuming task of research. This could apply to journalism research and limitless other fields." He explains progress in electronic computers in terms of generations—the first generation computer (1945-1950), the second generation (1950 to the present), and the third generation machines which are in the designing stages now.

ing the turbulent history of "cultural exchanges" between London and Paris in those early days, Professor Leathers' talks also show how seriously theatre-goers took their drama in both capitals.

Dr. Leathers recently completed the manuscript for a book to be published under the title British Entertainers in France by the University of Toronto Press. His forthcoming book is a critical record of visits by British entertainers to France in the 17th and 18th centuries. Some of the background for his radio talks is drawn from material he came across in preparing his book. Following are brief descriptions of the talks:

"We Don't Want French Players"
(March 8 and 9)

Dr. Leathers tells about an episode which occurred in mid-18th century when a French company attempted to visit the Haymarket Theatre, London, at a time when Anglo-French relations were near breaking point. Londoners focussed their hostility on the unfortunate visitors from Paris, creating a wild disturbance which ruined the performance on stage.

"Old Prices"

(March 15 and 16)

In September, 1909, a new Covent Garden Theatre in London, replacing the old theatre which burned down the previous year, opened before a capacity audience. To help defray the costs of the sumptuous new theatre the management had boosted prices by sixpence and a shilling. This price increase touched off wild protests from the audience.

"Down With Shakespeare"

(March 22 and 23)

When an English troupe visited Paris to perform Shakespeare's Othello in July, 1822, the climate of opinion in the French capital was hardly favourable to them. The Napoleonic Wars had left their mark in relations between the two countries, and the battle between the proponents of classic and romantic schools of drama was in full flower. Dr. Leathers tells how the English actor tried to make their Parisian stay an artistic success in spite of the turbulent reception they received.

"The Battle of Hernani"

(March 29 and 30)

In this final talk Dr. Leathers discusses the opening performance of Victor Hugo's Hernani which in February, 1830, brought to a climax a long-standing literary war in France between the classicists, who took the dramatist Jean Racine as their model, and the romanticists, who looked to M. Hugo for leadership.

CANADIAN SENATE

government of the day has usually run into difficulties in getting all its legislation through the Senate. So far this has not been the case, an apparent confirmation of the Senator's claim that partisanship rarely disturbs our mid-twentieth-century Senate.

In recording material for the program, Paul Fox talked with Senators about their duties and their opinions of those duties. One thing he found out was that, whatever the Senate might lack, it is not short of colourful members. They represent widely diversified talents and interests, and contrary to popular belief the majority are active and under 80. It is a rare Senator indeed who does not have a bagful of entertaining anecdotes about Canadian political life—so long as there is not a microphone in sight. Nevertheless, we managed to record a lot of pretty frank observations from members of the Senate, and listeners will get a chance to hear how people get into the Senate, what they do there, how they get along with Members of Parliament and with the Cabinet. You'll hear Senators candidly presenting their views on the weaknesses and strengths of the Senate and what they think could be done to reform it.

This examination of the Senate will take the form of a discussion between Paul Fox and John Saywell of the history department, University of Toronto. The Senators, and others, will be heard in illustration or contradiction of the points made by Mr. Fox and Mr. Saywell. Among the Senators appearing on the broadcast will be David Croll, William Brunt, Arthur Roebuck, John Connolly, Wishart Robertson, Cyrille Vaillancourt, and Harold Connolly.
